

Apple Antitrust and Competition Law Policy Statement

Apple is committed to conducting business ethically, honestly, and in full compliance with applicable laws and regulations, including U.S. and international antitrust and competition laws.

Antitrust and competition law is a complex area of law. How to apply the law is not always clear. When in doubt, you should always seek advice from your local counsel or the Competition Law Team (competitionlaw@apple.com).

You should consult with your local legal counsel or the Competition Law Team whenever there is a question as to the appropriateness of a particular business decision or course of action. Directors, officers, or employees who learn of any misconduct that raises potential competition risks, including violations of this Policy and the law, must immediately report such misconduct either to the Antitrust Compliance Officer or to Apple's Business Conduct Helpline.

Violations of Apple's Antitrust and Competition Law Policy or applicable global laws may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment. Violations of the law may also result in legal liability for Apple and individual employees involved in the misconduct, and could lead to significant fines, or penalties, including jail time.

Reporting violations is required. Apple will not tolerate retaliation against any individual filing a good-faith complaint with management, HR, Legal, Finance or the Business Conduct Helpline, or for participating in the investigation of any such complaint.